

SOLDIER BONUS NOW LAW OVER PRESIDENT'S VETO

SENATE PASSED BILL TODAY, IT IS NOW A LAW

Two Votes Over Needed Majority in Upper House of Congress

Washington, May 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—The senate today overrode President Coolidge's veto of the soldier bonus bill. The measure now automatically becomes law, the house having taken similar action. The vote was 59 to 26 to overthrow the veto.

Several organization leaders joined with a strong democratic line-up upsetting the veto on a vote which was in doubt until the last minute. This was two more than the necessary two-thirds majority.

President Coolidge himself made an eleventh hour effort to stem the tide of support for the bill. He summoned seven republicans favoring it to the White House but was unable to swing enough votes to accomplish its defeat.

Thirty republicans, 27 democrats and the two farmer-labor senators voted to override the veto. Nineteen republicans and seven democrats voted to sustain the president.

Those attending were Senators Harrell, Oklahoma; Phipps, Colorado; Sterling, South Dakota; McKinley, Illinois; Cameron, Arizona; Dale, Vermont and Keyes, New Hampshire.

Several of the President's guests were understood to have informed him they would like to sustain the veto but were bound by pledges given at the time they were elected and felt themselves bound to respect these promises.

A TREMENDOUS BURDEN. (By the Associated Press.)—Enactment of the war veteran bonus bill into law has laid upon the shoulders of the government departments an administrative task so huge that the figures involved staggered the imagination.

They must explore a veritable mountain of war records. From that mass of musty documents they must pick out the individual war histories of more than 6,893,000 men to provide the data upon which alone bonus payments of any kind can be made.

The daily service of every soldier sailor or marine who served under the flag in the great war at home or abroad, is subject now to minute examination. Through his days of sickness and health, of training at home or battle abroad, the searchers must follow each man through the wilderness of official records. And the bulk of the task must be done in the close packed filing cases of the War Department where the intimate official story of America's war alone is told.

167,000,000 Documents. In those records alone are more than 167,000,000 separate documents, each of which it may be necessary to handle many times before the veterans can all be assured of bonus payments. It will require 27 separate checking operations to make the examination of the files and it will take 2,800 clerks to do the work in the War Department alone.

There are amazing stories by the hundreds of thousands among these individual war records. There are tales of highest heroism, of great adventure; tales, too, rich in pathos and sacrifice. They are the war story of each one of the millions of men gathered into the vast volume of the files that must now be opened for perusal. Among them are the brief records of the many who were called for service but to whom death came in the hospitals almost before they had taken their soldier oaths.

And among them also, never to be recognized for what it is, lies the brief story of America's Unknown Soldier, the record that would show, if it were in the power of man to pick it out, who he was and where he fought and how he died.

By comparison the Army's share in the task of record searching overshadows the work that must also be done by the Navy and Marine Corps to carry out the will of Congress. In the Army files are the records of 5,250,900 men who may make claims. Each record before it can be passed upon. In the Navy files are the records of 551,736 enlisted men and of 11,880 women who served in the rank of "yeoman-F." In the Marine Corps there are some 80,000 records to be combed out.

Files in Washington. The War Department files are located here in Washington. They are crowded into the three floors of the historic old arsenal at Washington Barracks, scene of many historic events. It was there that the conspirators were tried for the assassination of President Lincoln and close by is the spot where some of them paid the penalty with their lives.

The documents, grouped in their enveloped jackets, are now set in soldierly ranks in 7,066 steel filing cabinets that placed end to end would cover more than five miles. They occupy 236 acres of floor space and they weight 1,080 tons and would fill 54 freight cars.

The very compactness of the files adds to the task of ascertaining the individual stories they tell. It is physically impossible to employ more clerks than the 2,800 who will be put to work about them. During the war the draft operations were far greater in scope because they dealt with men by the tens of millions. But that work was decentralized over the entire country and endless clerical help could be used. Now, the product of the draft in fighting manhood alone is to be dealt with, but that record is all here in the crowding filing cases.

Began Work Before. The War Department, and in cooperation with it, the other two military services, began preparatory work more than two years ago to make ready for the day when bonus legislation might be enacted. At that time Colonel Robert C. Davis, then commanding a regiment of Infantry at Plattsburg, N. Y., barracks, was summoned to Washington to begin a study that has resulted in the completion of plans for the gigantic clerical machinery it now becomes his duty to set in motion as he is now Adjutant General of the Army.

The youngest of American Major Generals, General Davis served in France as Adjutant General of the American Expeditionary Forces. In that capacity he conceived and created the Central War Records Office of the American land forces in France, an agency unequalled by the Allied Armies. He began that work with himself and one clerk as the personnel of what ultimately reached a peak of 7,000 clerks, aside from the many officers it required.

It was against that background of experience that General Davis visual-

FRANK CATALINA AGAIN IN TOILS FOLLOWING RAID

Violation of Dry Law Charged for Fourth Time Against Him.

City police and sheriff's forces armed with a search warrant went to the home of Frank Catalina, 114 Noble avenue, Saturday evening, where a search for intoxicating liquor was made and a quantity was found in the house. Catalina, who is said by the officers to be one of the worst offenders in the city, was taken to the county jail, where today he was making an effort to secure bonds in the sum of $2,000.

He was taken before Justice Grover Gehant this morning at 8 o'clock, waived preliminary hearing and was held to the grand jury under bonds of $2,000. State's Attorney Keller stated that the defendant had been taken four times, twice before on state charges and once on a city charge, this making his fourth arrest which constitutes a felony.

Is Under Injunction.

On March 28, Catalina was served with an injunction issued out of the circuit court by Judge Oscar E. Heard, restraining him from manufacturing, possessing or selling intoxicating liquor on the premises of his home at 114 Noble avenue. This action followed a petition filed by City Attorney E. E. Wingert who stated this morning that he would take action at the earliest possible date to have the injunction enforced. The circuit court is practically adjourned until May 29 when Judge William J. Emerson will return and at that time some action will doubtless be taken.

Members of the raiding party stated that upon entering the house, two of the children seized containers of "moonshine" liquor which they attempted to destroy after carrying them to a front hallway, by breaking the glasses and jug with a hammer. These containers, however, were seized before they had accomplished their purpose. Two local men who were at the house when the raiding party made their surprise visit, were questioned and released.

Bullet and Notebook Only Clews in Death of Youth and Teacher

Harrisburg, Pa., May 19.—Upon a battered leaden bullet and a worn pocket notebook, state police and county officials today pinned hopes of solving the killing of Harry Ganster, Marysville high school student, and Leah Ellenberger, Hollidaysburg teacher, found shot to death at Lamb's Gap, Saturday.

The bullet taken from the body of the girl was that which killed both her and her companion as they were preparing to return home after picking wild flowers on Blue Mountain. It was made for an old type of rifle. In a notebook found in the boy's pocket he had noted methodically many happenings and secrets of his life, addresses and a map of the mountain region in which he was killed.

His automobile which was being towed by another car, was pulled in front of the interurban. His legs were crushed and he was internally injured. He probably will live, it was said.

PLATTS HOME IS SCENE OF COSTLY FIRE ON SUNDAY

Families Absent When Residence Caught Fire Yesterday.

The residence of William Platts, 1213 West Fourth street, was badly damaged by fire Sunday afternoon, which was discovered by neighbors, after the two families occupying the house had left the city. The damage to property of William Platts and Louis Fish is estimated at about $1,200, being only partially covered by insurance.

The blaze apparently had started in a clothes closet on the first floor which is occupied by the owner. The flames burst through the closet door and spread to the second floor where Louis Fish resides. Mr. Fish and his family had left in the morning to spend the day in Aurora with friends and the Platts family had left at noon for Starved Rock, leaving no one at home. The entire interior of the house was aflame when the fire department arrived and it was necessary to use two streams of water which were played on the interior for almost an hour before the blaze was extinguished. The loss to the Fish family was estimated at about $500 on which no insurance was carried. The first was the worst the department has been called upon to fight thus far this year.

Chicago Breweryman Taken with Twenty-Nine Others Today

Chicago, May 19.—John Terrio, brewery owner and once one of the kings of the old south side segregated district; Dean O'Bannon, and 28 others, were arrested in a raid by police on the Seiben brewery today.

Terrio's name was mentioned in connection with the beer war last fall and the troubles in its wake and O'Bannon several times was arrested, but police failed to sustain charges against him.

Nine automobile trucks loaded with beer, five empty trucks and five automobiles were seized by the raiders, consisting of 39 policemen.

Some show of resistance was made but it was quickly overwhelmed. The brewery had been under watch for 12 hours.

FRANKLIN WOMEN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT SUNDAY

Miss Maude Conlon and Mother Victims of a Mishap in Dixon.

A Ford sedan, driven by Miss Maude Conlon of Franklin Grove, in which her mother, Mrs. Hannah Conlon, and sister, Miss Mae, were passengers, was badly wrecked Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, when a Buick touring car, driven by William Mondlock, struck it. The accident occurred at the corner of Third street and Dixon avenue. Miss Maude Conlon sustained two deep gashes on the left cheek and on the chin which required several stitches to close. Her mother was badly shaken up, sustaining some bruises and after having been given medical attention, was taken to her home in Franklin Grove in an ambulance. Miss Mae Conlon escaped uninjured. The passengers in the Buick touring car escaped without injury.

The Conlon car was returning from Oakwood cemetery where the occupants had attended the funeral of Richard Newman and was going west on Third street. Mondlock was driving south on Dixon avenue and did not observe the west bound car until it was directly in front of him. The Conlon car was thrown against the curb, both machines being considerably damaged, and were towed to garages for repairs.

A Nash roadster belonging to E. H. Beck of Polo, turned over three times and landed in a ditch along the Lincoln Highway near the Nachusa crosses Sunday afternoon about 2 o'clock. The occupants of the car were considerably shaken up but came out of the wreck without serious injury. The car is said to have been racing with a Lexington machine driven by two Dixon young men. It was hauled to a local garage to be repaired.

This morning information was filed in the county court in which he was charged with possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor on a public highway. He retained H. A. Brooks to represent him and the case was continued until June 3. He was taken back to the county jail while his attorney was endeavoring to secure bonds in the sum of $1,000 for his release.

15 YEARS A PRISONER, NOW NEW "O. HENRY"

KAIN O'DARE.

By NEA Service.
New York, May 19.—Kain O'Dare, at the age of 38 and after 15 years spent behind prison walls, appears as the reincarnation of O. Henry.

His own story is not unlike that of O. Henry, nor unlike one that O. Henry might have written. He served two years in prison at Elmira, N. Y., for forgery. For the same offense he served two years in Auburn and then eight years and ten months at Leavenworth.

Caught in Ranger, Tex., in 1919, he escaped from jail at Aldene, Tex., after being indicted for the theft of money orders totaling $20,000. For five months he was hunted in 38 states.

While he was being hunted he met a girl in Wichita, Kas. He fell in love with her. But he wouldn't marry her while the law was constantly at his elbow. Pursued, he fled. She promised to wait.

He called her his Night Flower—but that in another story, one for O'Dare to write in his own words.

When O'Dare was caught and returned to prison he was a changed man. He started to write. He wrote. And wrote. He set down in words the history of his life. Then comments on prison routine, what a law-hunted man thinks about, and of men he met in prison.

As he wrote he developed a distinct style. Men high in literary circles, have told him that he is the true successor to O. Henry.

O'Dare was released from Leavenworth in 1922.

He has asked for unconditional pardon that he may again have citizenship rights.

Now he continues to write, day in and night out, to achieve renown for the name of Kain O'Dare—which is really not his own.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Telegraph will publish a series of prison stories by Kain O'Dare, beginning tomorrow. The first will be "The Quest for the Night Flower," in which he tells of his strange romance with girl who caused him to reform. True, it is stranger than the strangest of fiction.)

STRICKEN WITH HEART TROUBLE WHILE SHAVING

Had Apparently Recovered From Illness; Funeral Wednesday

Funeral services for Justice James H. Cartwright of the Illinois supreme court, who died suddenly yesterday at his home in Oregon, will be held at the residence Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Oregon Masonic lodge, of which the judge had been a member for 50 years, will have charge of the obsequies. Rev. George H. Williamson, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Oregon, will conduct the services, and burial will be in Riverside Cemetery. The body will lie in state at the residence from 10 to 12 Wednesday.

Stricken While Shaving

Justice Cartwright was stricken with heart disease while shaving shortly before noon yesterday. He was assisted to a chair and expired in a few minutes. He had undergone a siege of pneumonia recently but had recovered sufficiently to visit his office for a little while each day.

Two sons, three daughters and a widow survive the judge. The children are Attorney James H. Jr., Chicago; Miss Ada, assistant Attorney General of Illinois; Mrs. Grace Townley, Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. Genevieve Salmon of Rio Janeiro, Brazil and Horace of Fremont, O.

Flags at Half Mast

Flags are flying at half mast in Oregon, where the judge, who was in his 52nd year, had resided since his youth. Bar associations of the sixth district are making arrangements to send delegations to the funeral.

Justice Cartwright was unanimously renominated at the sixth district convention here March 5 and unopposed in the election to be held June 2. He was elected to the circuit bench in 1888 and to the supreme bench in 1905.

Judge Cartwright was noted not only for the great number of decisions which he wrote, but for the incisive thought and illuminating power of interpretation which marked his work. He ranked second, or third, among the Supreme Court judges in the number of decisions written, according to statistics compiled by the court librarian. In 1920 the quantity of his work had been surpassed by only two other men, Judge Pinckney H. Walker, who was credited with writing 2304 cases and Sidney Breuse who wrote 1962 cases. In the first 25 years of Judge Cartwright's service he wrote 1712 decisions and has added to that number since then.

Born in Log Cabin

James H. Cartwright was born in Iowa Territory, Dec. 7, 1842 in a log cabin at the fork of the Maquoketa river, where the city of Maquoketa now stands. His father, a Methodist minister, and pioneer missionary in the then Iowa territory moved to Illinois one year after James' birth, and became a circuit rider, visiting all Methodist communities in the north-east part of the state.

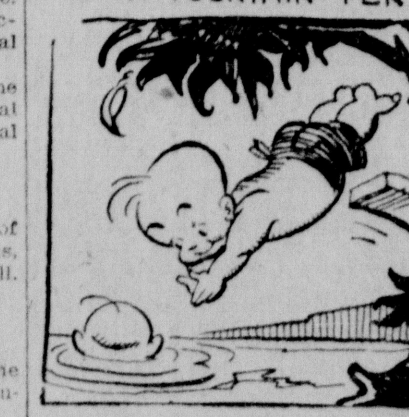

After the family had lived in La Fayette Grove, Prophetstown, Monmouth, Macon and Cuba for brief periods the elder Cartwright built a home in Mount Morris. James was seven years old at this time and the new home was the first house in which he had lived that was not constructed of logs.

James' early life was without incident, except for the usual hardships and privations of frontier life. He was exceedingly frail as a boy and was constantly annoyed by a sharp cough which was the cause of no uncertain prophecies among the neighbors as to his future. Hard work and outdoor life of the frontier, however, gradually overcame this weakness and at the age of 21 Judge Cartwright was one of the most active members of the Supreme Court.

Enlisted in War

After a brief grammar school education he entered the Rock River Seminary at Mt. Morris, but never finished his course, quitting to teach in a nearby school. While teaching, the Civil War broke out and he enlisted at the age of 19 with the sixty-ninth Illinois Infantry. In the meantime his father became a chaplain under General Sherman and James returned home at the end of his three months' term to care for his mother. He enlisted again in 1864 with the One Hundred and Fortieth Illinois Infantry and was elected captain of his company. This selection was not popular with his superiors, and he was called to Springfield where he was persuaded to resign. When the company met to elect a successor, however, the vote was

AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN RESIGN HIS POST THERE

Not Based on Pending Immigration Laws in United States.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, May 19.—The desire of Ambassador Woods at Tokyo to relinquish his post is believed by officials here to be based wholly upon personal considerations and to have no connection with pending immigration legislation in this country.
Mr. Woods first expressed his wish to be relieved when he was in the United States some months ago. His resignation has not yet been formally submitted.
Recent dispatches from Tokyo have indicated that the health of the ambassador's mother-in-law, Mrs. J. A. Marchand, who was injured during the Tokyo earthquake, has not improved and that her condition has become increasingly precarious.
Until the immigration issue developed, it had been the purpose of the Washington administration to relieve the ambassador in accordance with his request at an early date.

WILL LEAVE JUNE 6.

Tokyo, May 19.—(By Associated Press)—Ambassador Cyrus E. Woods, confirming the dispatch from Washington reporting his resignation, said it was due entirely to family reasons. The resignation was tendered three weeks ago. The ambassador will sail from Yokohama for Seattle on the President McKinley, June 6.
Foreign Minister Matsui when informed of the resignation of ambassador Woods said: "The Japanese people will deeply regret it. They will never forget the ambassador's unselfish and efficient services for their welfare at the time of Japan's great disaster."

Ten Violators of Traffic Ordinance Fined Last Evening

The touring public, local and visiting, appear not to have heeded the warning against cutting the corner of Seventh street and Galena avenue on the Lincoln Highway, with the result that ten violators were stopped and taken into police court Sunday evening.
John Maler failed to heed the traffic light at First street and Hennepin avenue and was the first to head the list of offenders, being fined the minimum amount of $3 and costs. Justice J. O. Shaulis presided in the violators court and assessed the same amount against the following: J. H. Russell, E. K. Wilkinson, E. G. Livermore, Fred Shepard, Bess L. Sergeant, Frank LeFever, E. L. Allison, John Woods, Ed. Schumacher, and Isadore Henry.

ized the task before him in Washington. He saw at once that there were three main elements in the war records of the army, the overseas records, the War Department original records, and the records of the embarkation service. He began his work by calling to his aid the officers who during the war had the greatest knowledge of each of these groups of records and it is with the aid of that staff of less than a score of tried and experienced "two-fisted" men that the plans were shaped in readiness for the bonus bill.

Some Job Ahead
Some idea of the complications that must be met may be gained from the fact that the Army files contain the records of 50,328 Smiths who served during the war; 40,101 Johnsons; 28,302 Browns; and 27,938 men named Williams. In countless cases initials are identical, yet the records must separate them one from the other and to each give his proportionate benefit computed on the actual service he rendered in the war.

Another complication foreseen lies in the fact that 12 per cent of all these 5,000,000 potential claimants can not read nor write the English language. A corps of interpreters, having among them knowledge of almost every tongue, must be included in the great office force to deal with the analysis of the records.
The starting point for every veteran in seeking compensation must be the filling out of application blanks already printed. It is here that General Davis fears there may be delay and that he has not only devised the form but has again to reduce it to the simplest possible terms, but has called to his aid the American Legion, patriotic and civic organizations and every ramified agency of the Federal government over the country to distribute the blanks and to help the veterans fill them in.

"Do not pay fees other than a notary charges," runs the language of an emphatic notice which will be circulated everywhere. The law prohibits any persons from charging a fee for assistance in the collection of the compensation.
Legion Offers Help
Legion posts everywhere have agreed to serve not only Legion members but all war veterans in filling out the blanks. In the same way every army post or detachment, every national guard center, and every official of the Federal government of whatever kind will give voluntary aid to the veterans as they need it.

General Davis has laid down one other main rule. Applications for blanks will not be received by the War Department directly from veterans. There will be no necessity for that as the banks and the envelopes in which to mail them will be made available everywhere and correspondence direct with the department would crush it under the load of clerical work before it could even begin on its real task.
When the applications are received they will go into a "receiving station" and notice will go back to the applicant that his case is in hand. From then on the applications will move in orderly way through the ramifications of the files to be checked and rechecked time and again.
There will be reference wherever necessary to the muster rolls of regiments and even small detachments and there will be comparison of finger prints to insure identification. The applications which can be checked in the regular way will move directly through the main channels of the files. Where difficulties are encountered, however, the troublesome application will be promptly side-tracked to a "trouble clerk" for special treatment and in order that there may be no delay and congestion in the main traffic.

General Davis estimates that with the system he has mapped out it will be possible to attain an average output of 30,000 certificates, checked and approved, in the space of one week. In order to reach that average, however, the system devised has been made sufficiently flexible to reach a daily total output of 70,000 certificates as a peak load in the full stress of the work.

The product of all this vast clerical labor will be the typed certificates forwarded to the Veterans' Bureau containing the records of each man's service and the computation of the exact amount of compensation to which he is entitled under the law. It is from the War Department, Navy and Marine Corps certificates that the checks for cash payments and the insurance policies will be filled out by the Veterans' Bureau and mailed to applicants.

LABOR PARTY OF ILLINOIS FORMED AT PEORIA SUNDAY

Will Try to Get Co-operation of Farmer-Labor Parties.

Peoria, Ill., May 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Eighty accredited delegates representing every section of the state gathered here yesterday, named themselves the "labor party of Illinois" and selected Duncan McDonald of Springfield as their candidate for governor and delegate to the St. Paul convention, June 17.

The new party, besides forming a platform of 13 planks, instructed its state executive committee to use every means possible to get the co-operation of the two other farmer-labor parties in Illinois.
Alexander Howatt, deposed president of the Kansas miners, addressed the meeting and told them "the workers must get together and clean house if they would accomplish anything" and that "house-cleaning must start in the American Federation of Labor, whose official body regards any opposition to their ideas as an attempt to overthrow the government."

Other State Candidates.
In addition to naming a candidate for governor the convention selected other candidates as follows: Lieutenant governor—Morton L. Johnson, Chicago, first secretary of the national farmer-labor party.
U. S. Senator, Louis Engdhal, Chicago, editor The Daily Worker.
Congressman at large, R. E. Baty, West Bankfort, a leader in the Co-operative Movement.
Secretary of State—Nicholas Kellogg, Waukegan.

Planks in the platform adopted were briefly as follows:
1.—Public ownership of public utilities.
2.—Government banking. Public control all natural resources.
3.—Eight hour work day in all industries with further provision adjusting hours of work so as to afford work for all.
4.—Child labor law prohibiting work by children under 16.
5.—Compensation for insurance for injury in industry.
6.—Abolition of use of injunction in labor disputes.
7.—Restoration of constitutional rights.
8.—Compulsory educational law with better schooling facilities and prohibition of the platooning system.

Equal Wages for Equal Work.
9.—Equal wages for equal work, regardless of race, color, creed, nationality or sex.
10.—Abolition of contract labor on public works, and substitution of state control, with union rates and conditions effectively.
11.—Mortgage relief for all working farmers on farm debts for five years.
12.—Immediate steps to curb gambling in grain.
13.—Elimination of landlordism and tenantry and securing of the land to the users of the land.

Admitted to Bar in '67
He took up the study of law at the University of Michigan at the end of the war and received his degree in 1867, returning to his home where he was admitted to the bar. He soon became associated with Henry A. Mix of Oregon, a noted lawyer in that part of the state, and became identified with condemnation proceedings in connection with obtaining right of ways for railways. In this work he gained a vast experience which later made him an authority on the law of eminent domain. He was retained as general attorney of the Chicago & Iowa railroad, now a part of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and held that position until that road went into the hands of a receiver in 1876. He married Hattie L. Holmes of Oregon in 1873. Two sons and four daughters were born of this union.

His first connection with the courts came in 1876, when he became Master in Chancery of Ogden county. He was elected circuit judge in 1888 and on re-election in 1891 was assigned to Appellate court duty in the second district in Ottawa. His work there attracted such wide attention that he was elected to the Supreme bench in 1895 and was re-elected in 1897, 1905 and 1915.

He was chief justice of the Supreme court from 1899 to 1900, 1905 to 1906, and from 1908 to 1909.

From the first, his career was marked for his tireless activity. He assumed his position in December 1895, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Bailey. When he took over the work he found that 30 cases, assigned to Judge Bailey, remained unwritten, and in the thirty days between the end of the December term and the beginning of the February term he not only wrote these cases but also completed the cases which had been assigned to him. This tireless activity has been typical of all of his service. In speaking of Judge Cartwright's ability to go to the heart of a case and produce a lucid interpretation of the law Judge Orrin N. Carter, his associate on the bench, said:

"A decision in a case involving great constitutional questions cannot usually be written within a few hours; but Judge Cartwright's great knowledge of constitutional law made it possible for him to write very expeditiously. I have heard him say that he wrote the opinion in People vs. Rose, involving the constitutionality of an act establishing new judicial circuits in the state, in one night, because it was an emergency matter that must be decided before the court should adjourn the next morning. In reading that opinion no one, I think, will notice any marks of haste in its arrangement or wording."

Another tribute to Judge Cartwright's attainments and style was paid by George Packard, prominent Chicago lawyer, who said:
"His opinions are conspicuous for their bluntness, their lack of ostentation, their downright fearlessness and directness of purpose. It is impossible to read those trenchant, brief, well-considered pages without a conviction that they speak the personality of a great, downright, plain, forceful character, typical alike of the state and of the time in which he was born, and unaffected by the changing influences of a modern and superficial age."

Was Very Methodical
One of the secrets of Judge Cartwright's ability to work rapidly and well aside from his rules of simple living, regular habits and relaxation, was his methodical arrangement of everything that he had to do. It is said that he appointed a time for every thing and was always very careful to do that thing at that time, whether it was an opinion he was to write, or a social engagement that he had promised to fill. He built for his hours of recreation and relaxation, a small cottage in the middle of a heavy timber on his farm at Oregon, and when the pressure of his work began to tell he would retreat to his woodland retreat.

One of his hobbies for which he is not as well known as his success deserved, was the breeding of fine trotting horses on which subject, he was considered an authority. Home of the fastest trotters in the Grand Circuit.

MURPHY'S HEIR?

A storm has broken within Tammany, according to political rumblings, as the result of efforts to seat James A. Foley to succeed the late Charles F. Murphy. Foley is mentioned as first choice of a majority of district leaders of Tammany Hall.

Authority on Politics
Another hobby, in which he was ranked as an authority, was the study of political history in Illinois. Mr. Cartwright who was a republican, did not mingle in politics, aside from the times in which he was a candidate for judge, but he was credited with having the most intimate knowledge of the working of our political systems of any man of his time in public life in the state.

During his career he handed down many interesting decisions on every imaginable subject. As Judge Carter has expressed it, he has ruled on everything, "from golf (Condon vs. Forest Park) to the most important question of state government (People vs. Lowden)."

More than 150 of his decisions have dealt with constitutional questions, some of them involving interpretations of the federal constitution. In Sutter vs. Peoples Gas Light Co., he defined clearly the restrictions of the General Assembly in the exercise of legislative power; in People vs. Dunne, he defined the powers and duties of the courts under the constitution; and in Harden vs. People, one of his first decisions, he went extensively into the subject of class legislation.

An interesting set of cases which Judge Cartwright wrote forbids the park commissioners of Cook county to build buildings in Grant Park and took up very carefully the question of riparian rights to artificial, or made land on the lake front in Chicago. The right of the legislature to control street car fares through public utilities commission was passed upon in another important case which he decided.

ANSWER TO A CHILD'S QUESTION—
Do you ask what the birds say? The sparrow, the dove, the linnet and thrush say, "I love and I love!"
In the winter they're silent—the wind is so strong,
What it says, I don't know, but it sings a loud song.
But green leaves, and blossoms, and sunny warm weather,
And singing and loving—all come back together.
But the lark is so brimful of gladness and love,
That he sings, and he sings, and for ever sings he—
"I love my Love, and my Love loves me!"
—Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—
Muslin Curtains.
Unbleached muslin makes very attractive curtains and may be dyed a darker shade by an amateur.

Soup Foundation.
A tablespoon of cooked cereal such as oatmeal or cream of wheat may be used as the foundation for a bowl of soup, combined with tomato sauce and possibly a few vegetables.

Picnic Sandwiches.
Sandwiches for picnics and children's lunches are kept much fresher and are more appetizing looking if they are wrapped in wax paper.

Vegetable Sandwiches.
Vegetable sandwiches are delicious, being made of finely chopped cooked and mashed vegetables. Celery and asparagus combine with others and give a distinctive flavor.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY.
A Daily Menu for the Stout and Thin. LOSE WEIGHT.

One whole large orange, 1 cup creamed dried beef on 2 pieces whole wheat toast, 1 cup beet greens, 2 lamb chops en casserole, 4 ounces watercress with lemon juice, 4 ounces fresh cherries, 1 toasted gluten roll, 1 whole wheat roll, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1194. Protein, 306; fat, 263; carbohydrate, 625. Iron, .0187.

The creamed dried beef is made with skimmed milk, about four of the very thin slices found in the average butcher shop and about one dessert-spoon of butter. Pick the beef into bits and "fizzle" them in butter, then stir in one tablespoon of flour and when the mixture is well blended slowly add milk, stirring constantly.

As the ordinary creamed dried beef is made with whole milk and much more butter it's quite necessary to make the diet dish separately. Made with skimmed milk as suggested the total calories, exclusive of toast, amount to 261.

Lamb chops carefully trimmed, peas, carrots and string beans are used in the casserole dish.

GAIN WEIGHT.
One whole large orange, ½ cup cooked wheat cereal with 1 dessert-spoon sugar and ¼ cup cream, four corn meal pancakes with 2 tablespoons butter and 4 tablespoons maple sirup, 2 heaping tablespoons potato soufflé, 1 cup creamed dried beef or 2 pork chops, 4 tablespoons apple sauce, one cup beet greens with 4 tablespoons hot tartar sauce, 1 cup cream of mushroom soup, 2 lamb chops en casserole, 4 ounces watercress with 2 tablespoons French dressing, 4 ounces fresh cherries, 4 tablespoons frozen rice pudding, 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 2 nut rolls, 2 slices bread, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 pint whole milk, 3 new potatoes in parsley butter.

Total calories, 4067. Protein, 466; fat, 1691; carbohydrate, 1910. Iron, .0191 gram.

As it's sometimes a bother to make two creamed dishes the pork chops and apple sauce are suggested for the gaining menu.

Left-over mashed potatoes are combined with eggs beaten separately and baked in individual molds or one large one for the potato soufflé.

The rice pudding is suggested for the luncheon dessert. No eggs are used. The rice is cooked until soft in milk and water, combined with sugar and stiff stewed or canned fruit pulp. Half the bulk of rice is the proportion for the whipped cream what is folded in just before freezing.

Meeting St. James Missionary Society

A delightful meeting of the St. James Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Emery Toot. The forenoon was spent in social chat. The delicious picnic dinner served at noon was much enjoyed.

The afternoon program opened with all singing, "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me." The monthly lesson was then taken up with Mrs. Shippert leading, the title of her subject being "Our Lutheran Churches in Japan."

A letter was read from the department of the Mountain Missions, thanking the society for the box of clothing sent them. Mrs. Nellie Glessner read, "Some Things the Girls School in Japan Will Mean," and Mrs. Mary Hank read, "From the Pulpit of a Hospital Cot."

Mrs. Lillian Shippert sang a solo that was much enjoyed, and Mrs. Nellie Glessner and Mrs. Lillian Shippert flavored with a duet, the title being, "Shall I Meet My Sainted Mother?" Mrs. Martha Shippert gave a reading, title "Our Mother's Way." Misses Irene and Elsie Toot sang a duet beautifully.

The reading of the minutes of previous meeting and roll call followed.

The amount spent for thread sent for the India Lace Industry was $1.70 and the ten cents per member, synodical fee was given at this time.

The meeting closed with all repeating the Lord's prayer.

Rochelle Choir Gave Excellent Program

At the Presbyterian church Sunday the Vespers service was in charge of the Rochelle Presbyterian choir.

About forty members of the choir, under the efficient leadership of Kathryn Diehl, gave a very creditable concert, consisting of solos, duets, quartettes and chorus numbers.

Every number given, including a cornet solo by Mr. Lazier, deserves most favorable comment.

Mrs. W. S. Hoon, organist, proved her ability as a skilled artist.

Rochelle is to be congratulated on having such a talented number of people willing to give their time in this worthy work.

Dixon people making up last night's audience were highly pleased with the program.

Hawks Cleaned Up Easily Saturday; Wrens Also Victors

STANDING OF THE TEAMS

	W	L	Pct
Hawks	9	0	1.000
Wrens	5	4	.556
Hoot Owls	5	4	.556
Meadow Larks	3	6	.333

The invincible Hawks again cleaned up in the Junior B basketball tournament Saturday morning, socking it to the Hoot Owls 12-1. The Hawks had it all their own way and were so strong that the Hoot Owls quit at the end of the first half and the game played indoor baseball.

The second game was much closer and was a battle from start to finish, the Wrens winning out over the Meadow Larks by a 14-10 score. There will be no games in this tournament next Saturday but the finals will be held May 31. All morning gym classes will be called off next Saturday on account of the grade school track and field meet. All those participating in the track meet will be allowed a bath and swim after the meet.

Changes in Physical Schedule This Week

Several changes in the program of the physical department will be made on account of the track meets Friday and Saturday. The baseball game between South Central and St. Mary's will be played Thursday at the South Side Park, instead of on Friday. The Juniors beginning swimming class which usually meets Thursday afternoon will be called off for this week.

Tennis Courts Are Ready for Playing

Work on the tennis courts is progressing and one court has already been completed and is ready for play. Within the week, the weather permitting, the other will be also put into commission. Many of the players have been digging up their rackets and preparing for a strenuous season. The club membership is growing and will soon be as large as it was last year.

INDIAN PREFER RED

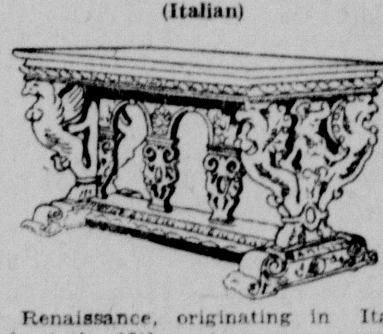

Washington—The red man's fondness for gaudy colors has long been known but it has remained for Dr. T. R. Garth, of the University of Denver, to ascertain their color preferences. Full blood Indians were found to prefer red to all other colors; then blue, violet, yellow and white in the order named. White men preferred blue, then green and then red.

PERIOD FURNITURE RENAISSANCE (Italian)

Renaissance, originating in Italy about the 15th century, was a revolt from the stiff, formal Gothic style back to the classic. The idea spread to France, England and the rest of Europe. Italian renaissance furniture was rich, elegant, highly carved, heavy and luxurious. Stamped leather and rich velvets accompanied it. Characteristic features in carving were the acanthus leaf, scroll, ribbons and flowers, with groups of fruit, grotesque human and animal forms in orderly array.

CUPID'S SENSE OF HUMOR.

Wedding invitations are being sent out by this year's crop of June brides. People soon will be saying, "I wonder what she sees in him?" or "What do you suppose made him fall for her?"

Queer teams often stand up before the clergyman, to live happily (or unhappily) forever after.

Well-mated couples there are, plenty of them. But now and then cupid seems to have a sense of humor.

Nature is a specialist at standardization. Blades of grass are much alike when matured. So are lions, camels, elephants, violets, trees.

People seem to vary more than any other form of life. Out of millions upon millions, duplicates are rare. It is almost phenomenal when a person doesn't have some distinctive marking or eccentricity or manner distinguishing him from all others.

Nature isn't very keen on this tendency to vary from type. She is constantly striving to restore the balance—to keep the individuals of the race as much alike as possible.

That's why Beauty marries the Beast. It also explains marriages of big men and little women, fat women and slender men, intellectuals mating with average intelligence.

There's a wise old saying about people having most chances of being happy if they marry opposites. The popular interpretation of this is that blonds should marry brunets.

But it applies equally to other personal differences.

Take a husband brainier than his wife. He enjoys helping her improve her mind. She "looks up to" him with respect. Other way around, too—an inferior husband respects the good judgment of his brainier wife.

Or one party to the nuptial state may excel in one trait and the mate in another. Each admires what he or she lacks and the other has in character, brains and disposition.

In the final analysis, all this probably is nature's system of restoring glandular balance to the race. For instance, a person with a sluggish thyroid gland is apt to be dull and indolent. When this type mates with a husband or wife possessed of an over-active thyroid, children are apt to have normal thyroid. The parents compensate or balance the thyroid situation.

So, then, never laugh at a "queer match." There's a reason.

DANGERS OF A WEAK NAVY.

Uncle Sam probably would gladly sink his entire navy if all other countries would do the same. When Uncle Sam called the disarmament conference in Washington, he was willing to reduce his navy as far as was possible with safety. And that was what happened.

Our naval experts figured that, to be reasonably well protected, our fighting fleet must be on an equal footing with England's and two-thirds stronger than Japan's. This program went into effect, giving Great Britain, United States and Japan the respective standing of 5-5-3.

Lately you have been reading a lot of controversy about the navy having fallen behind the 5-5-3 standard.

Just what its actual fighting strength is, must be confusing to most readers. It is weaker in some classes of ships than in others. Elevations of guns, determining how far a shell can be fired, also enters into the discussion.

The thing to keep in mind, however, is the navy as a whole—as an organization, we must remember that no chain is stronger than its weakest link.

Our Navy Department announces that the relative fighting strength of the fleets of Britain, America and Japan is 5-4-3.

Some experts go as far as to claim that the ratio is 5-1-3—that in actual battle strength our fleet is only a third as strong as Japan's and a fifth as strong as Britain's. This is the extreme view.

The feet remains, however, that our navy is claimed to have become weakened—fallen below the relative standing that our best experts consider necessary for safety.

If, as claimed, the navy is weaker than is necessary for national safety, the thing to do is to bring it back up to its strength as agreed on at the disarmament conference—and do it quickly.

Japan is building 84 fighting ships with a total displacement of 178,065 tons. And Uncle Sam is building only 24 ships with tonnage of 64,494. This obviously means that we are headed toward even a weaker naval standing than at present.

Congressional watchdogs of the public treasury, incidentally, before spending a lot of tax money should ascertain where truth ends and militaristic propaganda begins.

MISSISSIPPI METAPHOR.

We have it on the authority of Pat Harrison, who is practicing to be keynoter at New York, that the republican party is "dislocated at every joint and bleeding at every pore; it floats downstream, tossed by every current, and battered at every turn like a weather-beaten raft. No one guides it and the raftsmen are fighting for their own safety." When the eloquent Pat talks about a dislocated, bleeding, battered, and weather-beaten raft, doesn't he mix his metaphors a bit and reveal the dislocation of his own mind as the democratic party approaches another sensational defeat?

SPENDTHRIFTS.

The leading governments are beginning to live within their incomes, according to a check-up by the League of Nations. It reports Uncle Sam and John Bull spending less than they take in. South Africa and Finland have decreased their deficits near the vanishing point. Italy is spending a fourth more than her revenue. France, at the bottom of the list, is spending 100 francs for every 45 francs collected in taxes and other forms.

Where there is a burst of economy, it's usually due to politicians being unable to find more to spend.

REGRETS.

A lot of these business men who are grumbling at high taxes are really sore at a different situation, though they don't realize it.

The object is not so much against high taxes as the fact that business is in what looks like a long period of small margins of profit. The easy picking of war-time is gone, probably never to return in our generation.

Business will be big. Profits smaller.

The Greeks may not star in the Olympic games in Paris this year but they will shine in America alright.

"Now my son, you are too young to talk politics."

Wouldn't it be great if as many cook books as novels were sold?

The only hard thing about holding a job is the work it takes.

June is likely to be a wet month in New York.

Every week has too many nights to stay up late on all of them.

Chicago man got arrested for claiming a pistol beat four aces.

"It's Reddy Fox," he shivered.

"Mornin'," said old Daddy Cracknuts, pushing open the tingling door of Mister Bags' store, where the Twins were working.

"Mornin', Daddy," said Mister Bags.

"Mornin'," said Nancy and Nick, too.

"Nice day," said Mister Bags.

"Yep! Nice for ducks," said Daddy Cracknuts. "I just knew it was going to rain! I set to Ma last night, sez I, 'Ma, the moon's tilted and that means wet weather. When it's tilted like that, I sez, it spills all the rain out.' And I wuz right. It's so squashy this morning I went sockty, sock sock every step I took, and I'm as wet as a sponge. Achoo!"

"My, my! That's too bad," said Mister Bags. "I'm afraid you're catching cold, Daddy."

"I came to buy a bumbershoot," said Daddy presently.

"We don't sell guns," said Nick quickly. He was surprised at Daddy's remark because he knew how very much afraid of guns all the wood folk were.

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Daddy. "A bumbershoot isn't a gun. It's an umbrella. I want an umbrella to keep me dry—and a pair of goloshes."

Daddy said the "go" very hard. He had to go clear "tother side of Stony Creek on an errand for Ma."

"Why sure we can fit you out," said Mister Bags. "Here is a nice umbrella with a crooked handle to hang on your arm, and here are goloshes your very size."

Go away started Daddy. But scarcely had he turned the corner when whirr! wheel! eeee! A fierce wind blew him off his feet.

"My, my!" cried Daddy. "I never knew bumbershoots were so hard to hold. Jimmy Christmas! I wish that wind would stop!"

To add to his troubles, he had a feeling that someone was following him.

He nearly dropped his umbrella and basket and everything, when he saw a long red nose and the tip of a bushy tail sticking out on two sides of a bush. "It's Reddy Fox," he shivered. "A pretty kettle of fish I'm in."

Suddenly Reddy made a rush and in about three seconds he'd have had old Daddy by the tail, but at that instant the wind went whirr! Wheel! harder than ever, and catching in Daddy's umbrella, it lifted the squirrel gentleman right up in the air, over Reddy's head.

And thump, thump! Something hit Reddy two dreadful whacks on the nose and he ran howling. It was Daddy's goloshes falling off at exactly the right minute.

Daddy stopped in the store on his way home. "Gun nothing!" he cried. "A bumbershoot is ten times as good. I'll bet you Reddy Fox is running yet."

Lifer Escaped from Joliet Penitentiary

Peoria, Ill., May 17.—Harry King Peoria, slayer and lifer at the state penitentiary at Joliet, escaped last night at 9 o'clock according to a dispatch received by police here today. King was sentenced April 7, 1916, after he had pleaded guilty of the murder of Policeman Gray, Peoria, on the night of January 24, 1916. He was sentenced to hang after a trial here, but was granted a new trial by the state supreme court after which he was sentenced to life imprisonment after his plea of guilty. King shot and killed Gray when he was being placed under arrest for a series of fourteen daring holdups and robberies during one night.

An Australian experimenter reports he has heard some 600 American amateur stations.

The Making of a Salesman

The smoking compartment was crowded. With the exception of one, the men all seemed happy. The exception gazed out the window at the passing landscape. His down-at-heel spirit was in keeping with his down-at-heel clothes. He was far from happy, for he was returning from an unsuccessful trip. He had sold next to nothing, and it hurt him to hear the others describing the many big sales they had made. Finally he took his eyes from the window and inspected his fellow travelers. By George! they certainly looked successful enough.

LOOKED SUCCESSFUL. Maybe that was it. Maybe—The exception proceeded to study his own appearance as best he could. It dawned on him that he looked rather seedy—that he needed some new clothes. He represented an up-to-the-minute concern. He'd have to look up-to-the-minute himself, not like a run down agent of a run down business.

He bought the new clothes. They gave him new life, new confidence in himself. He started on his next trip in a better frame of mind—the result of better clothes. It proved a successful trip. His sales record climbed steadily. Today he is known as one of the best dressed men on the road. But what is more important, he is widely recognized as a master salesman.

MOLINE SINGERS IN FINE SERVICE HERE SUNDAY EVE.

Male Chorus Up to All Expectations; Church Crowded to Doors.

The highest expectations of the crowd which filled every corner of St. Paul's auditorium last evening, were more than realized in the program given by the Svea male chorus of Moline. Each number was delightful and inspiring.

The chorus has twenty-two active members under the leadership of Dr. O. H. Bostrom. It has just the right blending of voices to make a beautiful and complete whole, and the shading is done as by one person.

The program last evening was as follows:

- 1 a. On the Sea.....Dudley Buck
- b. The Prodigal Son.....Parks
- c. Patriot's Prayer.....Lindblad
- Svea Male Chorus

- 2 Trombone Selection
- Mr. Clarke L. Swanson

- 3 a. Martyrs of the Arena.....DeRille
- b. God That Madest Earth and Heaven.....Humphries
- Baritone Solo by Mr. Arthur J. Anderson. Chorus.

- 4 a. It is the Lord's Own Day.....Kreutzer
- b. Prayer Perfect.....Stenson

- 5 Baritone Solo, The Lord is My Light.....Alltisen
- Mr. Esley E. Johnson

- 6 a. Peace Perfect Peace.....Spence
- b. Good Night.....Dudley Buck

Chorus

The trombone solo was accompanied on the piano by Miss Swanson, also Mr. Johnson's solo. That of Mr. Anderson had a humming accompaniment by the chorus.

Told Story of Music

Dr. Bostrom's announcement of the numbers was interesting, and once he told the story of the music. "Martyrs of the Arena" was taken from the old Roman times when Christians were given to the lions for the amusement of the people. It first had a salute to Caesar, who was causing their death, but who could hurt only their bodies. Next was heard the music and merry-making of the city, coming out to see them die, then the roar of the lions.

WHY AM I DAT 'HOSS GONE?

WASH FUNK's old swayback nag causes him a lot of trouble, but he's a useful critter, at that, for he's furnished a lot of funny ideas for cartoons by Cartoonist Jim Williams. If you are not too busy in this paper you are missing a treat. Get the habit.

and finally the prayer of the Christians. This last part had a beautiful quartet as well as the chorus work, and brought out the thought that death is not the end but the beginning of life. Each number was worthy of special mention.

The usual vesper service of the church was used, led by the chorus. Three organ numbers were given by Mrs. Dwight Chapman. "In Summer," by Stebbins; "Cradle Song," Kreiser; and "Postlude," Whitney.

Between the parts of the program, the pastor, Rev. Lloyd W. Walter told plans for next week and next summer.

Next Sunday morning the confirmation class will have their public review and will be received into the church with other new members. In the evening there will be Holy Communion for those and others who have joined since Easter.

ALL INTERESTED IN OUT OF DOORS ASKED TO MEET

All Invited to Mass Meeting at City Hall Tonight.

"Don't be a quitter—fight!" With this as their slogan sportsmen, women and lovers of the out of doors will meet at the city hall this evening at the mass meeting being staged under the auspices of Dixon Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America.

This meeting, one of a national series of similar events, will be held as a protest against the threatened "side-tracking" of the bill now pending in Washington to establish a fish and game preserve in that section of the Mississippi river district extending from Rock Island, Ill., to Wabash, Minn.

Everyone Invited.

A personal invitation has been extended to every man, woman and child in Dixon to attend this meeting and R. M. Moore, president of the local chapter has announced good speakers.

Resolutions scoring the procrastination of committees in Washington will be forwarded to the capitol immediately after the meeting and petitions bearing thousands of signatures will be laid on the desks of senators and congressmen, as this local meeting is only one of hundreds being held throughout the United States tonight.

No Such Word as "Quit."

"There is no such word as 'quit' in the sportsman's dictionary," President Moore declared. "We have made a good fight for a preserve and we intend to follow through until we have gained our objective. This objective is within our grasp if we will only take the trouble to reach out for it."

"I want to see everyone of you fellows who have at one time or another kicked against the 'rotten deal' given the sportsmen' out at this meeting. We will furnish the opportunity for you to do some real kicking that will have a lasting result."

"Put on your fighting clothes and help us fight—don't quit now!" That the women of Dixon are solidly behind this movement to conserve a bit of outdoor America for posterity, is evidenced by the unprecedented activities of local women who have worked hard to get a crowd out for the event. The program will open promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

RALEIGH, N. C.—Four persons were killed and six injured when a Seaboard Air Line local passenger train crashed into an express train at Apex, N. C.

CLEVELAND.—Braving the wind and rain, jeers of critics and scorn of opponents, hundreds of Cleveland women, reinforced by several hundred World War veterans, marched in a peace parade sponsored by the Women's Council for the Prevention of War.

NEW YORK.—Pope Pius has awarded the 1924 medal commemorating the outstanding event of this year of his pontificate to the Knights of Columbus in recognition of their American welfare work.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON

Got your letter, old scout, and am glad you're getting on so well. Am also glad that you feel it would be better to postpone your visit until Leslie's return. She will be home in two or three days.

She writes me that her sister Alice has developed into something surprising while she was in England. I gather from Leslie's letters—not from anything she says, but from the tone of them—that she is rather a disagreeable sort of young woman, and I have come to pity Karl Whitney with all my heart.

I think you would smile, Sydney, if you should see how many fillial qualities I am developing. My mother came, you know, the day that Leslie went away. Of course I am very fond of her, but she is rather a capricious old lady, you know—believes in the superiority of the clan that descended from John Alden of Mayflower fame.

Since she has been here I have gone to church with her—think of that, Sydney! I have entertained the minister at dinner—and, by the way, Syd, I found him intensely interesting—very modern in his ideas, and thoroughly businesslike in his application of them to the needs of his congregation.

I don't think mother quite approved of him, especially as he smoked cigarettes after dinner, and discussed the influence of the latest play, the current movie, and the trend of politics. You would have thought that he was a very well informed man. There was no cant or hypocrisy about him. I liked him well enough, Syd, to invite him to come again when Leslie was home.

Honestly, I didn't know that the modern preacher was so interesting. All that I remembered about a preacher was the one that used to scare us to death with the threat of eternal punishment, when I was a boy. Now they are more concerned with what you do here, and how you help to improve your race and your world rather than about the degree of heat which will probably sizzle you in the next.

Mother's nurse and companion, a

Miss Anderson, is very charming and clever woman, and she has the great influence over the mater. She has made it perfectly apparent to my mother that my house should be run for me and not for the sake of the servants and furniture in it. Mother did not even find any fault when I brought Mrs. Atherton home to dinner a half an hour late the other night.

Of course she has nothing to do with the running of the house, but I fully expected not only to be found fault with for being late to dinner, but also for bringing my secretary home with me. Miss Anderson very tactfully conveyed the news to mother, however, that Mrs. Atherton was an old school friend of Leslie's. I don't think mother, however, would have been so complacent had she known that Leslie's old friend had never been in our house before.

TOMORROW: Letter from John Alden Prescott to Sydney Carton, continued.

Richard Newman is Given Military Rites

The funeral services for the late Richard Newman, World War Veteran were held yesterday, and were largely attended. A short service was held from the home at 1:30 and from St. Patrick's Catholic church at 2 o'clock.

The church was filled to its capacity and heard the impressive sermon delivered by Rev. Michael Foley. Members of Dixon Post, No. 12, American Legion and the Horace Ott Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to the number of about 200 men were present in a body.

Following the service at the church, the cortege headed by the Legion band and officers with members of both military organizations, moved to Oakwood cemetery, where final honors were paid. Chaplains John Earl of the Legion Post and I. M. Goodwin of the V. F. W. post conducted the services at the grave. A firing squad composed of three members from each of the two organizations fired a salute and taps were sounded. The pallbearers were Sherwood Dixon, Lawrence McCoy, Dan Timmons and Walter Smith of this city, Willard Jones of Sterling and J. Huggins of Polo. The firing squad was in charge of Sergeant John Kelly of this city.

The deceased was inducted into service at Dixon, going to Camp Grant on Oct. 4, 1917, where he was attached to the 36th Infantry in December of the Co. M of the 342nd Infantry. He was same year where he served with Co. C of the 503rd engineers, returning to Dixon the latter part of May, 1919.

In many states the will or testament of an unmarried woman is deemed revoked by her subsequent marriage.

SEVENTY THREE, BUT STILL IN GOOD HEALTH

Mrs. Franken Says She Feels Like 50, Thanks to Tanlac.

Mrs. KATHERINE FRANKEN

Giving the Tanlac treatment credit for her past several years of good health, Mrs. Katherine Franken, 745 Moes Ave., Peoria, Ill., recently said: "I am now seventy-three, but my friends say I look and get around as well as many women at fifty. The secret of it all lies in good health and the best recipe I know of for keeping one in good health is Tanlac. It built me up to fine health eight years ago, or more, and I have used it off and on ever since, and am feeling fine now."

"When I first took Tanlac indigestion was fast wrecking my health. I was troubled with fastic pains, nervousness, dizzy spells, headaches, pains in my back and limbs and was losing weight and color. Tanlac proved to be just what I needed then and it has not failed me since."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

The kitchen is cool because the fire is not going except when you are getting meals

Why keep a fire going when you are not cooking?

A COOL kitchen in hot weather is worth almost anything to a woman. You can have a cool kitchen—and at an actual saving of expense. The Florence Oil Range cuts fuel bills sharply, and the comfort you gain is beyond price.

The heat in a Florence Range is intense, but it goes into the cooking, not into the metal of the stove or out into the room. Anything that you cook on a coal or gas stove can be cooked quickly and well on a Florence Range. When you are through cooking, you just turn out the flame.

Burns cheap fuel

The fuel used—the vapor from kerosene—is cheap. Merely touch a match to the Asbestos Kindler. In a few moments you have a clear blue flame close up under the pot. You can regulate the heat to any degree desired.

FLORENCE STOVE COMPANY, GARDNER, MASSACHUSETTS

sired. It is not a wick flame, such as you see in the ordinary oil lamp.

The Florence means a clean kitchen, with no ashes or soot—just quick heat when you want it and only when you want it.

A thing of beauty

Porcelain enamel, black frame and nickel trimmings make the Florence Range an object of beauty worthy of any kitchen. It is built of the finest and strongest materials and will last for years.

There are certain exclusive features of the Florence that you will appreciate instantly when you examine this modern stove in the store.

It is sold by department, furniture, and hardware stores. Go in and see for yourself how the Florence works.

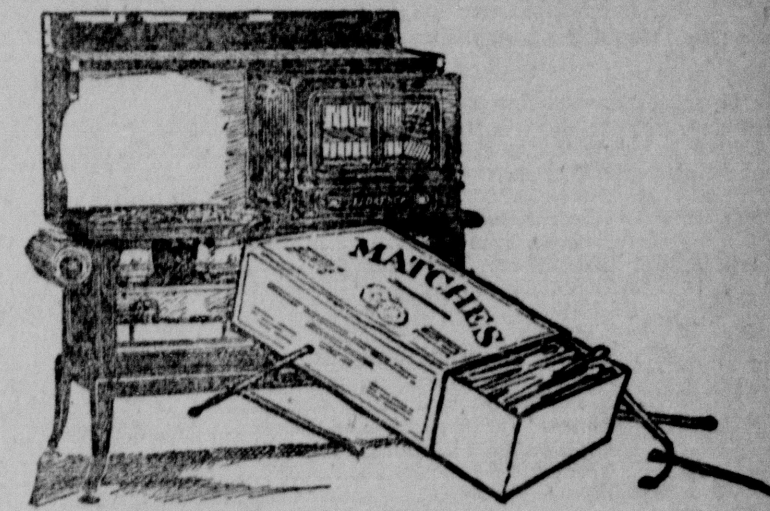

Florence Leveler Attached to each leg of the stove, this device enables you to set the stove level on an uneven floor.

The Big Burner The best in the Florence Kindler is close up under the cooking where it is not wasted.

FLORENCE OIL RANGE

All the wood you need is a match

Too often men-folks forget to chop the wood and keep a supply handy for your kitchen range.

You can be independent of wood. Install a Florence Oil Range. Then all the wood you'll ever need is a match to light the range.

The Florence Oil Range keeps your kitchen cooler and cleaner. It is the easiest to keep clean. It gives all the heat you'll ever need—and only when you need it. It gives long service, and will be the best-looking piece of equipment in your kitchen.

Drop in and let us tell you more about the Florence. We would like to demonstrate and explain how the heated oil vapor in the Florence delivers an intensely hot blue flame close up under the cooking.

GIANTS BROUGHT TO TIE ON THEIR WESTERN JOURNEY

Tackle Pittsburgh in Smokey City; Reds Recover from Braves.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Shocked and surprised along the western route but tied for first place for all of that, the Giants after a day of rest, engage old rivals today at Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati tied McGraw's team for the lead by defeating Brooklyn in the opening game of the series yesterday 5 to 4. Burrell Grimes' splitter was unreliable and when the Robins finally began meeting Donohue's shoots, the Reds had a lead made safe by Jackie May who relieved Donohue in the eighth.

The Phillies, suddenly become the mad caps of the league, made two homers, two triples, a double and a single in the second inning yesterday and beat the Cubs with five pitchers, 8 to 5.

Max Flack, with a double in the ninth, scored two runs and defeated the Red-conquering Braves, 5 to 4. Genewick weakened in the final frame and Cooney couldn't stop the Cardinals.

Speaker Back in Game
With Manager Suckner in the line up after an illness of two weeks, the Indians were made victors of Yankee batsmen and a pitching staff showing signs of reaching normal form. Shawky held Cleveland to seven hits while his mates, after two were out in the second drove 11th from the mound with five blows and six runs. The final score was 8 to 0. George Burns, Indian first baseman, hit safely for the 19th consecutive game.

Shocker, fresh from a recent victory over the world's champions, beat Marberry in a pitching duel in which each man allowed only two hits in eight innings. Walsh drew up in the ninth and St. Louis scored four runs and won 6 to 3 after a final Senator rally was checked.

The Red Sox retained their shade over the Browns for second place by beating Detroit 5 to 4 in a seventh inning rally that drove Cole from the box. Veatch, former Tiger outfielder, now with Boston, received a diamond ring from Detroit admirers.

Evers Under Knife
Johnny Evers, manager of the White Sox, became the second White Sox manager to fall by the wayside this season when he was operated on yesterday for appendicitis. He was resting comfortably last night and his condition was described as good. The team probably will be guided by a board of strategy consisting of Coach Walsh and Needham and Captain Eddie Collins.

Babe Ruth went hitless in two tries at bat.

The crippled White Sox had a badly needed day of rest at Philadelphia where the leadless crew opens a four game series today.

Dixon Maroons Win from Maytown Sun.

"Smokey Joe" Millers of this city made his debut at pitching baseball Sunday afternoon against Maytown at that place, when he twirled the Dixon Maroons to victory by a score of 3 to 2, the best game that has been played there this season. It was his first appearance in the box and he made a wonderful showing. He would have scored a shutout but for errors in the first inning.

Maytown's two runs came early in the game before the Maroon fielders settled down to play errorless ball. Scott's shoe string catch in left field featured. The Maroons collected eight hits while Maytown was able to garner but five bingles which were scattered.

Dixon Player Helps Sterling in Victory

Many Dixon fans were in the crowd which saw the Sterling American Legion team, of which Ward Miller of this city is right fielder, take their first Sunday game of the season yesterday, defeating Davenport, 7 to 1. Benton was on the mound for Sterling and held Davenport to two hits. Miller, in three times at bat, got one run and one hit, and did not have a chance in the field. The Sterling team opened the season Saturday against a weak team from Rockford, winning 20 to 2.

YANKEE RUGBY TEAM WON BIG OLYMPIC GAME

French Poor Sports as Americans Take Championship.

Paris, May 19.—(By the Associated Press)—The Stars and Stripes today floated over Colombes Stadium to signalize the victory of the American Rugby team in the first of the 1924 Olympic events to be staged there. The team from the United States vanquished the French combination 17 to 3 in a game marked by intense play and marred only by the attitude of the visiting players and watching the raising of the American flag in a cold silence, broken only by bores and cat calls.

The Americans refused to be ruffled by the attitude of the crowd and their bull dog spirit, together with their superior physical condition, carried them through under adverse circumstances. Americans among the audience however, could not escape embolism, and there were several personal encounters in the stands and two Americans were carried unconscious from the scene. One of them was Gideon W. Nelson of DeKalb, Ill., an American student in Paris. He was unconscious for an hour.

Newspaper experts are all overcome with disgust and mortification at the display of poor sportsmanship and ill feeling among the ignorant section of the spectators, which they term entirely unjustified and uncalled for.

COOLIDGE HAS COLD; REMAINS IN ROOM TODAY

Nothing Serious, However, White House Announces.

Washington, May 17.—Because of a slight cold President Coolidge cancelled his engagement for today and remained away from his office.

It was said at the White House that he was not confined to bed but had decided to spend the day in his room on advice of his physicians.

Mr. Coolidge contracted a cold several days ago and his recovery has been retarded by an unusual succession of May showers, which have kept the capital enveloped in dampness almost continuously. Wednesday when the weather was chilly but comparatively fair, the first of the season's garden parties at the White House took place and the President stood bareheaded on the lawn for two hours, shaking hands with the long line of guests.

Consulted Specialist
 Yesterday he consulted a throat specialist to whom he has made periodic visits since entering the White House. At the executive offices it was said no alarming symptoms had been noted but that as a precaution it had been decided to keep the President away from his desk at least during the morning when callers usually are received. It is possible he may go to his office this afternoon to attend to some correspondence.

It was the first time since he became President that Mr. Coolidge has been kept away from work by illness. One of the engagements that had to be cancelled was with republican leaders from Indiana who have come to Washington to talk over the tangled political situation in that state.

TEN CENTS PER LINE FOR CARD OF THANKS.
 Evidently there are some who do not understand that Card of Thanks run in a newspaper is purely a personal matter and not news, and consequently something for which a charge is made in all papers. Seventy-five cents is the minimum price in the Telegraph, so those wishing a card run would save all further annoyance.

LUS BROTHERS WIFE

by RUDY AYRES & NFA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton proves unhappy. When war is declared, Nigel is glad to enlist. He leaves Dolly in the care of Mary Farnival. Nigel is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart and calls with him to America.

When Nigel's brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary, is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. Nigel's wife, Mary, is to Red Grange to live with his aunt. Monty Fisher tells David that he knows that Mary is not Nigel's wife and David tells him that he found that out long ago.

When Mary sees Monty at Red Grange she fears exposure and runs away. David starts out to find Mary.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 "I don't think it is anything like that," he said. He laid his hand on her trembling one. "Monty is going to find her for us. Even in London it is not possible to hide forever, you know."

"But why should she want to hide?" asked Miss Varney brokenly. "I did my best to make her happy. I am sure I loved her dearly. As if I could ever be unkind to dear Nigel's wife!"

There was a little pause. The servants had left the room. Then David said suddenly, almost inaudibly: "But she was not Nigel's wife, dear."

CHAPTER XLIX
 Not Nigel's Wife
 FOR a moment Miss Varney stared blankly at her nephew. Then she drew herself up with a sort of peevish dignity.

"Really, David, I don't think it's quite nice of you to make jokes like that—if you meant it for a joke," she added with gentle rebuke. "Especially at such a time, when we are all so worried and unhappy."

David raised his eyes. There was something in her expression that would have told her without words that what he had said had been spoken in deadly earnest.

"I did not mean it for a joke," he said quietly. "Mary was never Nigel's wife. It's all been a mistake."

Miss Varney looked at Fisher helplessly. She wondered for a moment if David's head were turned; she pushed her chair back a little with a nervous gesture.

"David dear!"
 "It's quite true, Miss Varney," Monty Fisher interposed. "David is quite right in what he says. The lady who has been staying here with you is not, and never was, Nigel's wife."

There was a tragic silence.
 "I don't understand! You look as if you are speaking the truth, both of you. But—oh, it can't be true! She would never have deceived us so. Why, she told me herself how dearly she loved Nigel; how all her happiness died when he died."

"That is true enough," said David. "I believe she did love Nigel, but she was never his wife." He smiled a little, meeting Miss Varney's puzzled eyes. "I can't explain things any better to you, dear," he went on, "because I don't know the true explanation myself. But when we find Mary—"

"We may never find her," said Miss Varney chokingly. "Oh, poor child—poor child! David, is this why she ran away?"

"I think it must be. You see, she recognized Monty when he came yesterday; he had known her years ago. I suppose she thought that he would tell me—"

He broke off with a feeling of bitter anger against himself.
 "Why had he not let Mary know that he already knew her secret? Why had he allowed her to suffer the torture of fear of discovery?"

FIFTY YEARS AGO
 A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womanhood. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's called Anril (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

"He has not turned her out; he has come to London to try and find her."

The hot color dyed her cheeks; her eyes grew angry.

"You are not telling me the whole truth; you are keeping something back. This woman seems to have bewitched you all. Monty, you are unkind, when you know how interested I am in David. I believe you are helping this woman to take him away from me."

"You can't believe anything of the sort, and if you speak so loudly David will hear."

"I don't care if he does." But she lowered her voice.

She looked very beautiful, standing there in the uncertain light. Her long, golden hair was unbound and falling below her waist. She wore a loose white wrapper, heavily trimmed with dainty lace, that suited her to perfection.

For a moment there was silence, then she burst out with a sort of exasperated triumph.

"There is one thing—she can't marry him; she is his brother's wife! There would be an awful scandal!"

Monty frowned. Sometimes, much as he loved and admired his sister, she jarred his nerves.

"A man may marry his brother's wife if he chooses," he said. "But David never would. He would never like the kind of woman Nigel liked. How can you suggest that he would ever take a fancy to a common woman like Nigel's wife?"

"I suggest nothing. It was entirely your own idea."

She made an impatient gesture. "Why does he want to find her? Something must have happened. If you don't tell me, I shall ask David. I can't prevent you."

Her mood changed suddenly. She slipped a coaxing hand through his arm.

"Monty, don't you love me any more? You've been so horrid to me lately. Why is it?"

He slipped an affectionate arm round her.

"Silly child! Just because I won't tell you everything you want to know."

She drew away from him. Her eyes were angry again.

"Then you are keeping something back from me!"

He hesitated, finally he stooped, and brushed her soft cheek with his lips.

"I am only keeping it back for your good."

"My good! What rubbish you talk! How can it be for my good not to tell me things about Nigel's stupid wife?"

There was subdued passion in her voice; she pushed him angrily away.

Monty lost his temper; he let her go.

"Very well, then, if you insist, I will tell you. She is not Nigel's wife—this girl—that is the whole truth!"

CHAPTER L
 "A Woman Scorned"

HE was sorry as soon as he had spoken. The whiteness of her face touched him. He tried to take back his words or soften them; he began a stumbling explanation, but she cut him short.

"Is this true—really true?"

He answered miserably that it was.

She stood for a moment staring at him with blazing eyes, then she turned and left him; and he heard the shutting and locking of her door.

He hesitated, not liking to leave her, and yet longing to get away; he listened, but everything was quiet, and he went softly to his own room.

After all, it was just as well who should know now as later; the shock would only be made worse by delay.

But behind her locked door Dora Fisher stood with clenched hands, and blue eyes blazing in her white face.

Bitter jealousy set her heart on fire; not jealousy because she loved David, but jealousy to think that another woman, not so beautiful or fascinating, should have succeeded where she herself had failed.

WALKER DEFENDS ENDORSEMENT OF GOVERNOR SMALL

Head of Illinois Federation of Labor Addresses Miners.

Peoria, Ill., May 17.—(By the Associated Press)—President John Walker of the Illinois State Federation of Labor addressed the delegates at the Illinois Mine Workers here today on the subject of labor politics. He defended his endorsement of Governor Small, saying that the governor's platform included many measures advantageous to labor, such as the abolition of injunctions in labor cases, freedom of speech and assembly and trials by jury. Walker said that he had submitted these measures to Norman L. Jones, the democratic candidate for governor, but had obtained no response, although he had evidence that Jones had received his proposals. He said that a representative of the federation had gone on the floor of the democratic convention and was howled down when he urged the adoption of the labor issues.

"It's the best chance we have had in years to elect men favorable to labor," said Walker. "For two years Small was influenced against me and President Frank Farrington of the miners, but now he has come around and supported labor measures."

Supporter Farrington
A delegate asked Walker about his attitude towards socialists running in the present state campaign. "I haven't a word to say about candidates," replied the speaker, "but when the case arises where one man who might be favorable to labor has a chance of being elected and his opponent has no chance I would favor the election of the former." Walker said that he regarded President Farrington's superpower proposal as one of the most forward looking schemes ever proposed by organized labor.

A row over the report of the credentials committee followed Walker's speech. The insurgent delegates, led by John Hindmarsh and John Wait, argued against adopting the report. They accused the committee of having seated ineligible delegates, but President Farrington pointed out that their protest had come too late. After a lot of speaking the resolution was adopted with very little opposition.

Adjourn Until Monday
The resolution calling for support of Alexander Howatt was not brought up. The resolutions committee, headed by George Mercer of Canton had printed its substitute for all Howatt resolutions and had it ready for re-submission, and will defend it against Howatt's supporters. The committee's sub-resolution voices approval of the part Illinois Miners had in winning the fight against the Kansas Industrial Court last year and reaffirms its stand for full trial before the union's tribunals of all members accused of wrong, but it neglects entirely to mention Howatt's name.

Insurgents will demand that one of the original resolutions be adopted and that the district convention go on record as demanding a special international convention for the purpose of hearing Howatt, and "giving justice in his case."

The convention adjourned until Monday morning.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

PREACHER HITS PACIFISM

Dear Editor—Will you permit me to say a word through your valuable columns on a vital subject that is now agitating the public mind? There are some things I must, as a man and as an American citizen, get out of my system, and I know of no better way than to hand some things over to you. Every drop of my patriotic blood has been stirred during the past week as I have read in our secular and religious papers of the endorsement of the propaganda of extreme pacifism; the attempt of religious bodies to invade the rights of state and dictate to Congress and ignore the very Constitution of this great republic.

It smacks too strongly of the union of church and state. The great principle of separation of church and state has been dear to the American people and no organization has a right to challenge that fundamental doctrine of our government. This nation has many perils but the most dangerous is pacifism, which is a violation of the law of nature and the law of God and every principle of a free government.

Let thoughtful people stop and think for a moment what this extreme pacifism implies as expressed in resolutions of some schools and religious bodies, pledging to refuse to participate in war of any kind, even defense of country or humanity. It means:

First.—That they agree in advance to be loyal to the government in time of war, even when our country is invaded by a foreign enemy and our homes and our American institutions are being destroyed and our government is being overthrown. They pledge themselves not to lift a hand in her defense. In all justice they thereby should surrender their citizenship. It is just that they should ask to government to protect their lives and property in times of peace and then refuse to defend their country in the hour of her distress?

Second.—Pacifism means the disbanding of our army and navy, the dismantling of our forts of defense and inviting military power of other nations to come and take us. It is unpatriotic, un-American, anarchistic and fraught with deadly consequences.

Third.—Pacifism says that it was a tragic mistake for America to enter the World War; that Kaiserism should have been allowed, without resistance to smash all Europe, to break down all international law, take the United States and wreck the civilization of the world.

Fourth.—Pacifism says that the hundred thousand brave American boys who gave their lives for Democracy and humanity were victims of a "gigantic fraud," all the fervent patriotism and loyalty of our people was a mistake, and only in the ranks of bolsheviks and radical socialists do the true views prevail. Such stuff may be accepted by the misguided and disloyal pacifists, but will be re-nounced as damnable by loyal American citizens.

What is worse about the whole business is that his disloyalty to our country is being taught in our schools colleges and seminaries, and so widespread is this bolshevism of Russia in this country that Congress is compelled to take it up and pass a law to make it a crime to use the mails to disseminate this destructive propaganda. I have unstinted praise for the American Legion for protesting to the officials of the University of Chicago against use of their buildings by the pacifists. I want to give them the right hand of fellowship. Now Mr. Editor, I feel better for getting only a little of this out of my system,

L. D. LAMKIN.

REGARDING FLAG

Editor Evening Telegraph, Dixon Post, Number 12 American Legion's slogan: A wider parade for flag day and display at proper times of the colors. And have successfully pushed a plan for a homogenous embellishment in the business sections of the city and their endeavors have met with hearty co-operation. Under the Post's plan a housing in the sidewalk in front of every store is to be provided in which, at proper opportunities, the owner or proprietor will place a 12 foot staff from which will fly a 6x4 flag. The flag is too long for length of staff for when dormant will drop ten feet and when dropped to half mast would drag eight feet. "Old Glory" has never touched the ground. I would suggest a 3x2 flag, when dormant would drop five feet, when displayed at half mast there would be two feet clearance.

OBITUARY

RAY B. LELEY

(Contributed)

Ray Burbank Leley was born August 31, 1891 on a farm near Dixon, later moving to this city, where he was reared to manhood and where he received his education in the public schools.

He was taken ill in Marquette, Mo., where he was making a week-end visit.

Word came to Mrs. Leley and his sister, Mrs. Bailey went to his bedside. He seemed better and was brought home, being taken to the Dixon hospital where it was hoped a slight operation would be beneficial. However, he grew worse and passed away Wednesday, May 14, at 4:45 p. m.

He enlisted in Co. M, 37th Infantry and served fifteen months in the World War; returning to become a faithful employee of the Brown Shoe Co. His death was a severe shock to his many friends. He was loved by all who knew him, a fact attested by the many beautiful floral tributes.

Besides his parents he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Harry Bailey of Matton, Ill., a brother, Julius of Dixon; and a nephew, Donald E. Leley. The funeral was held at the home, 707 Lincoln Avenue, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. G. E. Lair of the Congregational church officiating, and with music furnished by Mrs. Allan

Reed and Mrs. D. B. Bowles. Burial was in Oakwood.

1200 vs. 12

THE average individual, engrossed with his own affairs, may not appreciate that the number of automobiles increased 1200% between 1913 and 1923, while the average price of gasoline for the entire year 1923, increased but 12% over the year 1913.

While the production of crude oil during the period increased 300%, the output of gasoline increased 600%—a noteworthy achievement.

Without the processes originated and developed by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), this increased yield of gasoline could not have been obtained.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has led in the adoption of improved methods in all departments of refining and marketing petroleum.

This Company has fostered the adoption of every new method which could influence lower production and distribution costs. The benefits resulting from these improvements have been reflected to the consumer in better service and better products.

The motorist driving through the Middle West is able to buy gasoline made by this Company at convenient intervals on city streets and country roads.

He may encounter all sorts of food and lodging—all kinds of roads—but he will find Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gasoline everywhere and everywhere the same, and the price will be low.

To maintain such a satisfactory condition of affairs, the Management of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has dealt wisely with labor—employed capital sensibly—and used invention intelligently.

In this way it has been able to assume a generous share of the great burden of meeting a 1200% increased demand for gasoline while charging only 12% more for its products in 1923 than in 1913.

Builds Better Buildings Cheaper

THIS is what we mean by a better building. One that is a better place in which to live or work, one that performs its functions in a more thorough way. It must be a healthful building, free from dampness. A comfortable building, warm in winter and cool in summer. It cannot burn down, neither must it deteriorate with age—it must be permanent. A modern building that stays modern and an attractive building that has its value enhanced by a distinctive beauty.

To build such a building cheaper means that the cost of materials must be less and that the job be done more rapidly with less labor and material. Not only should the first cost be less, but the later expense of repair and upkeep should be eliminated.

Duntile builds such buildings, better and cheaper.

WOMEN USED TO FAINT AT VOICE OVER WIRE

It would be hard to convince the woman of today that her sister of a generation or two ago used to faint when she heard a voice over an ordinary telephone wire, but it is true, according to W. D. McKinney, a pioneer telephone man of Columbus, Ohio, who entered the business at the bottom when boys were employed as operators.

"When I first started to work, as a boy," relates Mr. McKinney, "it was common for women to faint when they heard a voice on the other end of the wire. They thought it was supernatural."

"The exchanges were bedlam. Girls were not employed. The old companies, in the seventies, hired boys to handle the calls. At first there were no numbers and only names were used in switching the calls from line to line."

"We boys stood in a row along the switchboard. When a call came in a boy would yell to another down the board: 'Give me Old Man Halkins', and the calls had to be crossed between the different parts of the board."

The first "multiple" board was put in service in 1879. Shortly after its appearance women were first employed as operators.
